

Palantir’s Tech Ecosystem

Palantir, a surveillance tech company, holds major contracts with ICE to track immigrants, with the U.S. and Israeli militaries, and according to its CEO, Alex Karp, its “weapons software is in every combat situation I’m aware of.”<sup>1</sup>

This factsheet maps Palantir’s relationships with other major tech companies using 2025 tax filings, press releases, software documentation, and marketing materials.

Only significant partnerships between Palantir and the world’s largest tech companies with strong brand recognition are included. This does not include every tech company that Palantir works with. Companies are ordered based on depth of partnership with Palantir. To learn more and get involved in the global campaign visit: afsc.org/purge-palantir

Microsoft:

Palantir relies on Microsoft’s cloud services for operations since at least 2024.<sup>7</sup>

Through Palantir and Microsoft’s partnership, Palantir deploys its suite of products (Foundry, Gotham, Apollo, and AI Platform) in Microsoft Azure Government and for classified and “top secret” information.<sup>8</sup> Palantir also began adopting Azure’s OpenAI Service in its platforms.

The partnership seeks to assist DoD workers to develop, “AI-driven operational workloads across Defense and Intelligence verticals — from logistics, to contracting, to prioritization and action planning,” according to the Palantir press release.<sup>9</sup>

Palantir lists Microsoft as a “Technical Partner” in its “Vanguard Network,” a collection of companies that Palantir collaborates with to deploy its software in different industries.<sup>10</sup>

Amazon:

Palantir relies on Amazon Web Service’s (AWS) cloud services for operations.<sup>11</sup>

The two companies have integrated Palantir Foundry and Amazon Sage Maker, Amazon’s AI software.<sup>12</sup> At least 12 of Amazon’s data sources and AI tools intertwine with Palantir’s software through this partnership.<sup>13</sup> The partnership targets the manufacturing, healthcare, and energy industries.<sup>14</sup>
