AMERICAN FRIENDS

SERVICE COMMITTEE

1·9·5·7

In order to enable the Society of Friends in America to continue to be of service at home and abroad, the following approved form of bequest may be used when writing a will:

"I give and bequeath to the American Friends Service Committee, Inc., with headquarters at 20 South 12th Street, Philadelphia, Pa., the sum of $....., the principal and interest of said sum to be used at the discretion and by the direction of the American Friends Service Committee, Inc."

Checks for the support of the work should be made payable to:

WILLIAM R. FOGG, Treasurer
20 South 12th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

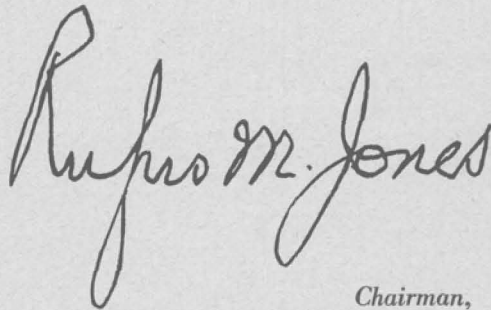

Arrangements have been completed with The Provident Mutual Life Insurance Company, one of the most substantial financial firms in America, to accept and make payments upon annuities given to the American Friends Service Committee. For persons sixty years old and over the Committee is able to offer six per cent annual income, paid by the above firm, and at the same time to realize substantial benefit from the annuity for its own work. In cases of persons over seventy-five years of age it is possible to give a larger interest if required. The office of the American Friends Service Committee would be very glad to correspond with anyone interested in this form of investment-contribution.

ANNUAL REPORT 1937

WE FIND ourselves today in a very confused world, with material things and forces in the saddle, riding rough-shod over the tenderer human aspects of life. What a world it is for peace-lovers, for idealists, for prophets of the soul, for the quiet champions of the spiritual forces!

Well, in one of the darkest hours of history, when a Roman Emperor had set himself to end Christianity in its cradle stage, a Christian prophet in exile on the island of Patmos wrote this amazing challenge: "The lamb made war with the beast and overcame him." It sounds absurd but it literally happened. The Galilean conquered.

It will happen again. The way of love, the way of peace, the way of truth, the way of soul force, which this Report describes in some detail, is even now a way of victory, and is quite worth considering.

Chairman,
American Friends Service Committee.

SOCIAL-INDUSTRIAL SECTION

THE Social-Industrial Section is trying to find ways and means whereby people can satisfy their urge to have a part in bringing about a more Christian social order. Different approaches are made through the activities of the three main sub-committees: The WORK CAMP COMMITTEE, giving opportunities for work and study in areas of tension and conflict; the PERSONNEL AND PLACEMENT COMMITTEE, affording students opportunities for work in settlements and in recreational activities; and the REHABILITATION COMMITTEE, undertaking the development of a new community, an adult educational program in a mining community, a health service, and a study of the sharecropper problem.

These opportunities in which 240 young people shared this past summer, brought a new sense of the value of physical work as a means of understanding people of different social and economic groups, and of bringing about social change by non-violent methods. A fine sense of fellowship has begun to grow among those who are sharing in these experiences.

The monthly meetings of the Section have been largely attended and have provided occasions for a continuous discussion of many social and economic problems.

THE WORK CAMP COMMITTEE

"For book-bound college students there is nothing more refreshing than seeing statistics come alive; . . . This summer we saw machines in the very mines, we saw the Union meeting of a mine due to close in a year, and we helped dig and build to aid in stemming the tide of future displacement. It was great . . . The study of rehabilitation under an actual rehabilitator in the office of a rehabilitation project was a unique privilege."

Thus wrote an Amherst senior of his experience in the Fayette County Camp. It might have been any one of the 178 students who participated in the six Volunteer Work Camps conducted during the summer of 1937. Again it demonstrated that in the Camps the Service Committee has a program which is gripping student imagination and offering unusual opportunities for practical participation in rural and industrial reconstruction, as a supplement to academic courses, and as a moral alternative to military service.

In each Camp the students lived in simple quarters, worked from six to eight hours a day, cared for their own living arrangements, and participated in an educational program centered around the economic and social problems of the area.

Two Tennessee Valley Work Camps

Two of the camps were again located in the Tennessee Valley. A group of forty-one students, under the directorship of Burns and Elizabeth Chalmers of Smith College, completed the construction of a fish-rearing pool as part of the T. V. A. project for stocking Norris Lake. Materials and engineering supervision were furnished by the Tennessee Valley Authority. Discussions centered around the policies and problems of the T. V. A. as they relate to low-cost power distribution, flood and erosion control, health, and labor relations within the Tennessee Valley area.

A Junior Camp was located on Pelissippi Point near Norris, Tennessee. Here, thirty-one school boys, under the directorship of George and Nancy St. John, of Choate School, assisted the T. V. A. in developing a new recreation area. Discussion and field trips centered around industrial relations in the Valley and the work of the T. V. A.

The Delta Work Camp

At the invitation of the Delta Cooperative Farm, and in cooperation with the Student Christian Movement of the Rocky Mountain Region, a Camp was held at the Delta Farm, Hillhouse, Mississippi. Sixteen students, under the directorship of Harold Colvin of the National Student Y. M. C. A. and of Claude and Mary Shotts, of Northwestern University, assisted with the Farm's development. The Delta Farm offered a particularly good vantage point from which to study the disintegration of the cotton tenancy system.

The Fayette County Work Camp

Another camp was located in Fayette County, Pennsylvania, under the directorship of Stanley and Marie Hamilton. A group of forty students assisted in the development of this new A. F. S. C. project for displaced miners. They laid part of the water system, built temporary houses, built a hay and stock barn, opened up a large stone quarry and assisted with recreational work. Evenings were spent in study and discussion of the economics and control, and mechanization of the soft coal industry, and possible means of rehabilitation, governmental and private.

The Philadelphia Work Camp

At the Friends Neighborhood Guild in Philadelphia, under the directorship of Marion Lang, Headworker, a group of eleven students renovated one of the settlement buildings used for club and craft work and assisted the board and staff in a study of the Guild's services to the surrounding community.

The Brethren-Mennonite-Quaker Work Camp

In cooperation with the Church of the Brethren and the Peace Society of the Mennonite Church, a Camp composed of representatives of each of the three groups was held under the directorship of Dan West, at the Tunesassa Indian School, Quaker Bridge, New York. Twenty students painted and re-roofed several of the buildings, and assisted with construction work on the Indian Reservation.

The Camp's main task, however, consisted in the exploration of the means by which the peace activities of the three churches might be coordinated for more effective peace education.

A Strategic Educational Program

Increasing interest in the Work Camps on the part of university students and faculty and of many government officials, has encouraged the Committee in feeling that the program is one of unusual significance. The Camps' central emphasis upon non-violent means, their insistence upon the basic relevance of religious insight, and their emphasis upon work and study as a moral alternative to military service, make them a vital educational force today.

This past summer's student and leadership group included 146 men and 58 women. Eighty-one different campuses, thirty states and nine foreign countries were represented. A student-faculty Work Camp Conference for the New England area was held at Smith College over the week-end of December 4-5.

In addition to local and regional educational leaders drawn into each of the Camps from the surrounding area, many men of prominence in Government and education visited the Camps and talked with the campers about the problems they were encountering.

PERSONNEL AND PLACEMENT COMMITTEE

To know social ills through first-hand experience and to learn the value of the forces of non-violence as an approach to these problems is the growing concern of many young people today. It has been the work of the Personnel and Placement Committee to find openings for individualizing and particularizing the sufferings of a strata of society that these people have known heretofore by hearsay alone.

Summer Volunteer Workers - 1937

During the summer 36 workers served in 11 institutions, the majority in Philadelphia and vicinity. The group came from all sections of the country and was scattered in urban and rural districts.

Twenty-nine of the workers attended a four-day conference at Pendle Hill, the purpose of which was to help the workers:

- (1) Achieve an increased sense of fellowship with each other and with the Service Committee.
- (2) Deepen their own social philosophy.
- (3) Develop a better understanding of conditions and group work techniques.

Worship, lectures, discussions and recreation made up the day's program. As a result, the workers felt a sense of unity with each other and with the Service Committee. The Conference leaders were: Howard H. Brinton, Clarence E. Pickett, James Myers, Homer L. Morris, Richard Gregg, Fern Colborn, Herbert Bergstrom, Thomas R. Kelly, and Esther McMillan.

The 36 summer workers belonged to 10 denominations, represented 18 colleges and came from 15 states.

REHABILITATION COMMITTEE

Fayette County

"Religion is a vital factor in the life of any community. But it reaches its greatest heights when translated into effective, practical action that makes for a higher, finer society. In view of that fact, the American Friends Service Committee deserves recommendation and cooperation as it launches an impressive program of service to the mining regions of the nation."

*(Excerpt from an editorial in
"The Brownsville Telegraph," Fayette County, Pennsylvania.)*

After several delays and re-vamping of program, the Fayette County Rehabilitation Project was started in the Spring of 1937 as an experiment in the re-training of unemployed and partially employed coal miners. Two hundred acres of land were purchased in April near Republic, Pennsylvania. On this land it is proposed to establish fifty families.

The launching of a project, involving the building of a community, requires making many major decisions of policy, and settling many details in the development of the undertaking. The mere suggestion of some of the problems will serve to indicate the type of decisions with which the Committee and the Staff on the Project have been compelled to wrestle: Who should be selected as homesteaders and what should be their qualifications as to age, employment, location, health, size of family and character? How much land should be assigned to each homesite? Should this be cultivated individually or collectively? What is the maximum loan that should be made and at what rate of interest? How should the agricultural program be organized and administered? What industries can be developed as a source of cash income? How can such a venture be financed? With the cooperation of the Committee, the Field Staff, many technical advisers, public-spirited leaders in Fayette County, and the Homesteaders, substantial progress has been made.

A community plan has been adopted, and the first section of the tract laid out in homesites averaging in size about one and one-half acres. Sixteen homesteaders have been selected and are now working on the Project. House construction has been started. A lease agreement has been entered into with the homesteaders for the lease of a homesite for a period of twenty years, with the option to purchase or with the agreement to lease or sell the property to a community association, provided two-thirds of the homesteaders request such action. The agreement provides for a maximum loan of $2,000 at 2% interest to be amortized at the rate of $10 per month over a period of twenty years.

Re-training Emphasis

The project is designed to re-train the workers in other skills than mining. This is being worked out through almost every activity in the development, including construction, agricultural development, community organization, development of weaving and carpentry, operation of a cooperative store and the development of social and recreational activities.

Construction Program

It is an essential part of the re-training program that the homesteaders assist in the construction of their own houses. The building project will give the men training in masonry, carpentry, concrete work and some experience in plumbing and electric wiring. They are taking pride in constructing their own houses, and gaining confidence in their ability to do things which they have not done before. This is quite as important as the actual building and is the essence of rehabilitation.

The homesteaders have organized a Community Association which meets every fortnight to consider community problems. This Association is functioning through three committees: The Store Committee, which is conducting a cooperative store on the Project; a Social Committee, planning a number of socials and community gatherings; and a Work Committee, cooperating with the manager in coordinating homesteader labor on construction and community development.

The farm program has been organized not only for the production of cash crops but primarily for building up the soil by use of lime and fertilizer; starting proper rotation of crops; teaching homesteaders proper garden and agricultural methods; and developing a good dairy and tested poultry flock.

Plans are under way for starting weaving and carpentry.

This Project is financed almost entirely by industrialists, foundations, and individuals who are vitally concerned with the incidents of unemployment.

David W. Day, who was the Manager of the Government Homestead at Westmoreland for three years, is Manager of the Project. Errol D. Peckham has charge of selection of personnel and Levinus K. Painter of the development of the agricultural program.

The Friends Service, Incorporated, a non-profit corporation in the State of Pennsylvania, has been organized for the purpose of holding title to the property and administering the legal phases of the Project.

Friendly Advisers—Eastern Ohio

The work of Stanley and Marie Hamilton and Edwards and Marjory Dickinson under the joint auspices of the Service Committee and the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America has gained significance during the past year. The Affiliated Council, the local advisory and interpretation committee, composed of representative people from the district, has met quarterly and assumed increasing responsibility for advising and directing the work.

Libraries

The library started in the Hamilton home in June, 1934, and the one started at Neffs by the Dickinsons, have been taken over by local committees and are under the supervision of the County Library Organization.

Recreation Institutes

Three one-day institutes have been held for the training of leaders in cooperative recreational games and programs. In addition, local groups have attended similar institutes in nearby counties. The leaders trained in these institutes provide leadership for community gatherings, Farm Bureau Meetings and cooperative occasions.

Visitation of Students

Special arrangements have been made for groups of students from Miami, Denison and Antioch Colleges and Ohio State University, to inspect mines in the area, to visit the cooperative store at Dillonvale, to interview industrial, union and cooperative leaders and to be entertained over night in miners' homes.

Adult Classes

Adult education classes have been confined to Labor Problems, Child Study, Handicraft and Gift Making, Folk Dancing and Community Recreation, Cooperatives and Women's Gymnasium and Discussion Groups.

For the second year the Wheeling Forum has been conducted under the auspices of a local Forum Committee for the discussion of timely social, economic and religious issues by nationally known speakers. This Forum has been the center of super-patriotic attacks which have emphasized the insecurity of the guarantees of our democratic institutions—freedom of speech, the press and assembly.

During the summer, volunteers from the Youth Section of the Emergency Peace Campaign carried on a program of peace education among the labor groups.

Baseball

Sponsorship of the United Mine Workers Baseball League has been continued by Edwards Dickinson serving as Secretary-Treasurer. There were 10 teams, playing 26 games, involving 215 players with an attendance of 22,000 spectators.

Folk Center

The recreation institutes, the discussion groups, the conferences between employers and employees, and farmers and industrial groups, the preservation and cultivation of folk crafts in Eastern Ohio have all emphasized the need for some kind of folk center from which activities could radiate. The possibilities of such a center are now being explored.

Friends Health Service

The Friends Health Service in Logan, West Virginia, under the direction of Winnifred Way Wencke, has continued to render aid to those who are unable to pay for private medical service. Limited funds have restricted the work almost entirely to children. Financial support has come largely from coal operators, United Mine Workers Unions, business men, local civic clubs and organizations. This cooperative support is in itself significant.

Winnifred Wencke has also served as Secretary of the Logan County Crippled Children's Society.

The scope of the work of the Friends Health Service during the year is indicated by the following statistical report: Home visits, 1,956; physical examinations, 60; minor operations, 25; eye examinations, 58; glasses furnished, 29; dental cases, 66; special examinations and treatment, 41; cod liver oil distributed, 344 pints. In addition to the medical work the Health Service distributed 19,301 garments.

Maternal Health Clinic

The Maternal Health Clinic, organized in 1936, has continued its service in connection with the Friends Health Service. This service is under the medical direction of Dr. Raymond Squier, of the National Committee on Maternal Health. It is financed by a grant from the Milbank Memorial Fund to the National Committee on Maternal Health. The Logan County Medical Society has endorsed and cooperated fully in this program.

The report of Alice Beaman, the nurse in charge, will indicate something of the extent of the work. During the year, 585 women have enrolled for the service, making the total enrollment since its beginning, 798. There have been 1,970 visits made.

Wilmer and Mildred Young Fellowships

Because of budget limitations it was impossible for the Social-Industrial Section to support directly the work of Wilmer and Mildred Young with the cotton sharecroppers in the South on the Delta Cooperative Farm. They have been closely identified with the work of the Section and a number of their friends have wanted to share financially in their concern. This was made possible through the creation of the Wilmer and Mildred Young Fellowship.

Acknowledgments

The Social-Industrial Section wishes to acknowledge the cooperation and assistance which it has received from the Federal Council of Churches, the Tennessee Valley Authority, State and local officials, Directors of Settlements, the Delta Cooperative Farm, industrial leaders, labor leaders, the William C. Whitney Foundation, the Grant Foundation and the General Sunday School Association of the Universalist Church.

Through Friends' efforts, German Mennonite funds feed hungry children in Czechoslovakia

FOREIGN SERVICE SECTION

THE Foreign Service Section through its four international centers of service and reconciliation in Europe, seeks to carry out the Quaker message of love and brotherhood in various ways. But the spirit in which the work is attempted and the need which it tries to fill are best portrayed in the words of a European Friend who spoke at the recent World Conference of Friends at Swarthmore College. "You felt the concern to go out and feed starving children fifteen years ago. May it be your concern now to go out and feed starving minds."

Berlin Center

Each of our centers tends to reflect in its aims and activities the particular concerns of those who serve as our representatives there. In Berlin this is demonstrated clearly by the growing interest in the group life which has been manifest among the members not alone in Berlin Monthly Meeting, but to a certain extent in other parts of Germany. A direct factor in this developing interest has been the work of Albert and Anne Martin in the International Secretariat. Margaret B. Collyer, representative from England, has supported the Martins in stimulating the organization of a monthly "Familientag" which has been held for nearly a year now and seems to have become an established institution.

Our representatives at Berlin have also felt it desirable to visit groups and isolated individuals in other parts of Germany and the committees at home appreciate the fact that this intervisitation is an increasingly important part of the work of the Secretariat.

The Center received helpful visits last year from many people. Especially useful were the trips made by Gilbert MacMaster who came from Basle to consult with the staff and to take over the management of the office while the representatives were all away from Berlin on business. Corder Catchpool also came several times to Berlin in connection with his work in facilitating the transfer of funds from Germany to Czechoslovakia for relief of children, mostly of German extraction, living in the border provinces. Albert Martin went with him this fall to inspect conditions in the area where this aid is being given.

The Martin family is returning to the United States in the summer of 1938. Their service has been most acceptable in Germany and it will not be easy to fill their places. The value of the service of love and understanding which such a Center embodies makes those who know its purpose and its work convinced that it must be continued and that new persons will be found to carry on.

Paris Center

Youth seems to be the keynote struck by the activities of the Paris Center. Under the watchful guidance of J. Mahlon Harvey, representative of the A. F. S. C. in Paris, the Cercle International de Jeunesse has increased until it has now reached the point where it is struggling to become an independent self-sustaining organization. Its membership totals more than one hundred and includes representatives of twenty-nine nationalities.

The headquarters of the France Yearly Meeting continue to be the International Center. Meetings for worship and for business are held there and the Clerk of the meeting, Henri van Etten, conducts much of the business and social work of the meeting from the Center offices.

The relief for German refugees in Paris, carried on partly under Quaker auspices, has been brought to a close this fall when final disposition was made of the remaining cases on the rolls. Paula Kurgass, herself a refugee, who had helped with the administration of the relief, died suddenly in a sanatorium in Zurich shortly after the close of this work. Her loss was keenly felt not only by the refugees, but also by many others with whom she had come in contact.

President William W. Comfort of Haverford College made an extensive tour among the French-speaking countries during the spring of 1937. He gave a series of lectures, chiefly at the universities, which were most acceptable. He went abroad under the auspices of the A. F. S. C. as an Ambassador of Goodwill and was accompanied on his travels by his wife and by Henri van Etten, who arranged his tour.

The normal activity of the Center has been stimulated and increased during the past year by the relief necessitated by the Spanish Civil War. Both the English and American Committees on Spain use the Paris Center as the focal point of their activities in connection with shipment of goods, transfer of funds, and arrangements for personnel destined for Spain.

After five years of service, the Harveys will return to the United States in the summer of 1938. Allen and Helen Bell Hole have been appointed to replace them.

Vienna Center

Vienna is noted among other things for the relative permanence of its staff, but even this rather constant group this year has seen a great change in its personnel. Early in October, Headley and Elizabeth Horsnail retired to England after more than twelve years of faithful and devoted service in the Center and Hostel. Emma Cadbury remains to continue the work and is assisted at present by Louisa Jacob. A young English Friend, Mary Campbell, will join them shortly to remain until Roger Carter can come out permanently in September. Mary Campbell has a very special interest in the Work Camp at Marienthal established by the Austrian group of Friends and in which English young people also participate during the summer.

In addition to continuing the administration of relief to victims of the February 1934 uprising in Austria, of whom 250 families are still in need of aid, the Center contributed to the organization of Spanish relief work by lending the services of Emma Cadbury for nearly two months last spring. She negotiated with Nationalist Spanish authorities, preparatory to the beginning of impartial relief. Emma Cadbury has also given a great deal of time and thought to the problem of stateless persons and political refugees which was formerly the special concern of the Nansen office in Geneva.

Geneva Center

The Center and Hostel are now united under one roof. The old League building, rechristened the Palais Wilson, has become a center for over thirty international organizations located in Geneva. The Friends International Center has joined them and occupies the fourth and fifth floors of the building together with the Student Hostel.

Visitors to the new Center quarters are impressed not only by its more central location, but are convinced also of the continued vitality and fruitful activity of the League of Nations. Politically, the League is under a cloud, but much valuable social and economic work continues to be done. The Friends Center plays a part in many of these official and unofficial activities and has many contacts with students who come to study the work of the League and its affiliated organizations. The presence in Geneva of such an experienced representative as Bertram Pickard was never more keenly needed than at present, as forces for cooperation and international justice under law seek to build a new and better League,

Not the least of the services of Bertram and Irene Pickard has been their continued interest in the young Swiss groups of friends of the Friends. There is already an active Friends group in Geneva itself, but this last year has seen the development of an increasingly strong group outside Geneva. The culmination of this growth has been the holding of a week-end conference of the friends of the Friends at Lausanne late this fall.

Mabel Ridpath, for seven years Warden of the Hostel, returned to this country this fall after the final transfer to the new quarters had been completed. James and Anne Forsythe are now the Wardens.

Fellowships

The Mary Campbell Memorial Fellowship for 1937-38 was awarded to Carl Q. Christol, Jr., a student at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Cambridge, Mass. At present he is studying at the Institut Universitaire des Hautes Etudes International and is living at the Quaker Student Hostel in Geneva.

Lawrence Kirkpatrick is in Palestine as Mary R. G. Williams Fellow for 1937-38. He is a graduate of Park College, Missouri, and has studied at the University of Pennsylvania and at Temple University. He is teaching English at the Ramallah School for Boys and helping in the dormitory.

Ambassador Fund

Mention has been made of the trip to France last spring by President William W. Comfort of Haverford College, travelling as an Ambassador of Goodwill. This trip was made possible by the establishment of a special fund to sponsor such journeys by prominent Friends from the United States to various parts of the world.

Douglas V. Steere, professor of philosophy at Haverford College, spent the summer in northern Europe and the Scandinavian countries under the auspices of this fund. He visited pacifist groups and work camps for alternative military service and interviewed prominent statesmen in several countries in addition to his travels among Friends' groups.

International House in Washington

The International Student House is now in its second year in Washington and continues under the direction of Grace Lowry. It accommodates 18 residents and a few additional students for meals. It also serves as a club center for the members of the International Student Club of Washington. The House is filled to capacity.

Further Activities

Dr. Hertha Kraus, of Bryn Mawr College, acts as adviser and counsellor in refugee and immigration cases which come to the attention of the American Friends Service Committee. For several years Dr. Kraus personally maintained a service of correspondence, information, placement and vocational and educational assistance and advice for refugees. She was prominently connected with the German child-feeding and has been officially associated with the Foreign Service Section in this further work since April, 1937.

The Service Committee has continued to have an interest in the progress of the two international schools in Holland with which various European Quakers are associated. The school at Schloss Eerde, Ommen, has about 100 pupils of several nationalities and is under the direction of Katherina Peterson, M.D. A smaller school, located at Haarlem, is managed by Manfred and Lilli Pollatz, members of the German Yearly Meeting.

COMMITTEE ON SPAIN

FOR twenty years the American Friends Service Committee has sought to be an influence for peace in the world. It has often emphasized that it is not primarily a relief organization and that, however worthy may be the feeding of hungry children, there are times when other agencies are more properly equipped for humanitarian charity. The A. F. S. C. would work where there is need for reconciliation. Its rehabilitation of people in distressed areas of conflict, its child-feeding and its relief in war zones are means to the end that men and women may be won by evidences of love. It is an appeal to that of God within them to solve their differences through the exercise of good-will and cooperation instead of through violence and bloodshed. Relief work in war-torn Spain is in this spirit. Peace may be long in coming to that unhappy country but this is evident: to many hearts on both sides of the battle lines a will for peace has been reborn through the Committee's impartial service.

Quaker-Mennonite-Brethren Cooperation

At the first suggestion of taking up child-feeding in Spain, the Church of the Brethren and the Mennonites expressed the desire to associate with Friends in testimony to their peace principles. Further support and endorsement came from the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. With these groups as a nucleus a Committee on Spain was established to secure the cooperation of other religious and peace organizations, and to extend a public appeal for funds. Henry Tatnall Brown accepted the chairmanship of the Committee, and John F. Reich has served as its secretary.

Policy of Impartiality

Dedicated to strict political impartiality, the Committee appointed Sylvester Jones, of Chicago, to investigate conditions in both Loyalist and Nationalist territories. On his return from Spain in early February he confirmed the judgment that there was overwhelming need for food, clothing and medical supplies on both sides, especially for refugee women and children. It became the Committee's policy to maintain relief workers on both sides of the war, and administer relief according to need. In view of the greater civilian distress in Government territory this area has received a larger volume of supplies.

Life, says this refugee baby in Spain, is a matter of milk. Esther Farquhar and the doctor agree

Field Personnel

Esther L. Farquhar, of Wilmington, Ohio, and Wilfred V. Jones, of Chicago, were appointed to undertake relief administration. They sailed in May: Esther Farquhar to establish contacts with English Friends in Loyalist territory, and Wilfred Jones, jointly with Emma Cadbury on leave from the Vienna Center, to negotiate the establishment of relief work in Nationalist territory.

The visit of Patrick M. Malin to Spain during the summer strengthened the work both in the field and at home. As A. F. S. C. Vice-Chairman he was able to draw together representatives of many agencies interested in Spanish relief. His travels included an investigation of relief activities in both Loyalist and Nationalist territories, and conferences with relief committees in London, Paris and Geneva. Throughout he was accompanied by T. Dudley Perkins, of Moorestown, New Jersey, who was a welcome assistant in Friends relief centers in Barcelona and Murcia. On their return, Patrick Malin's report and public speaking on behalf of the work, interested many influential people.

Relief in Loyalist Spain

English Friends became active in Spain promptly after the outbreak of war. Their work of child-feeding and refugee relief has been principally in Madrid and Catalonia. Francesca Wilson, of the Friends Service Council, made a beginning of relief work among the refugees from Malaga. These activities in Southeastern Spain were taken over by Esther Farquhar and developed through the summer. She became responsible for administering food and clothing provided by the A. F. S. C. and other foreign relief agencies, notably, Friends Service Council, Save the Children International Union (Geneva), and other Swiss, Danish and American committees. She set up milk clinics for infants, public dining rooms for refugee children, summer camps and a sanatorium so that children might be removed from congested refuges during the summer heat. Sewing rooms for refugee women, work shops and the distribution of large quantities of clothing were included in the relief aids. Eleanor Imbelli, of the S. C. I. U., and Barbara Wood, of the F. S. C., cooperated helpfully in the work.

Since the Southeastern territory was largely turned over to American responsibility, the A. F. S. C. undertook in October to maintain three children's hospitals in Murcia, Almeria and Alicante, which had been established by Sir George Young and staffed by British nurses.

Relief in Nationalist Spain

Heavy fighting through the summer created much distress in Northern Spain. With the fall of Bilbao, Wilfred Jones was able to enter that city and open public dining rooms for children, and also make available to the Spanish Red Cross, A. F. S. C. supplies of milk and clothing. On the return of Wilfred Jones to the United States in September, the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions released Rev. Earl M. Smith, of Montevideo, Uruguay, to serve in Spain under A. F. S. C. auspices. He and Dan West, of the Church of the Brethren, have since developed relief work in devastated villages in Northern provinces. Their concern primarily has been to provide clothing and restorative foods for children in mountainous regions otherwise cut off from aid. Toward the close of the year they were joined by David Blickenstaff of the Church of the Brethren.

Mennonite Relief Committee

Mennonite interest in Spanish relief was early evinced by the appointment of Orié O. Miller to the Committee on Spain, representing the Mennonite Central Committee. He also represented the Mennonite Relief Committee which organized during the summer, a Spanish relief mission to cooperate with the Service Committee.

D. Parke Lantz, of Lancaster, Pa., and for many years a resident of Argentina, and Levi C. Hartzler, of Chicago, sailed in November to establish work in Southeastern Spain, in conjunction with the projects previously set up by Esther Farquhar. At the same time the Mennonite Relief Committee released four and one-half tons of clothing for immediate distribution in Catalonia, Murcia and Nationalist Spain. The Mennonites also forwarded to Philadelphia one and one-half tons of shoes and clothing for later shipment to Spain.

Spanish Relief Funds

A. F. S. C. relief in Spain began in June. By fall the Committee was spending approximately $6,000 a month for field operations. Total A. F. S. C. relief expenditures in Spain during 1937 amounted to $58,489.95. Of this, $22,020 consisted of contributions in kind shipped from the United States.

Clothing Committee

As the need for clothing in the coal fields has decreased, the store-room at 15th and Cherry Streets, Philadelphia, Pa., has become increasingly busy with demands for Spanish relief supplies. Under the chairmanship of Eleanor Stabler Clarke, the Clothing Committee has devoted itself to securing gifts in kind consisting principally of new and used clothes, shoes, bedding, layettes for infants, sewing materials and soap.

During the year 333 bales and cases, a total of more than nine tons of supplies, were collected in this country and shipped to Spain. An additional nine tons of clothing were shipped to the coalfields.

Cooperation

Individuals and church organizations throughout the United States, and organizations interested in peace, have contributed to the Spain relief work. It represents a united effort to demonstrate by positive action the power of goodwill to overcome the forces of hatred. In addition to Friends, Mennonites, and Brethren, and the Federal Council of Churches represented on the Committee on Spain, there has been close cooperation and support from the following organizations:

Greater New York Federation of Churches

American Unitarian Association

Committee on Public Affairs of the New York Society for Ethical Culture

World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches

Committee on World Friendship Among Children

Universal Christian Council

Central Bureau for Relief of the Evangelical Churches of Europe

Council of Women for Home Missions

Association to Save the Children of Spain

United Christian Youth Movement

National Conference of American Rabbis

Fellowship of Reconciliation

The foregoing supported the Committee on Spain by formal action of their governing boards. Considerable financial aid has come from other people and church groups, whose unofficial connection with the work has been deeply appreciated. There has been formed in New York a non-partisan committee to raise funds on a national scale for administration by the A. F. S. C. This group, the Spanish Child Welfare Association of America, includes many prominent citizens, and plans extensive activities in 1938.

PEACE SECTION

DURING 1937 the Peace Section has concentrated most of its efforts in seeking to multiply the number of people who could carry on effective peace programs in their communities across the United States. Ten Institutes of International Relations broadened the information on world affairs and deepened the conviction of responsible teachers, ministers, club leaders, students and others. These Institutes were held at the following places:

Whittier College, Whittier, California

Mills College, Oakland, California

Reed College, Portland, Oregon

Bethel College, Newton, Kansas

Grinnell College, Grinnell, Iowa

North Central College, Naperville,
Illinois

Peabody College, Nashville, Tennessee

Cheney State Teachers College, Cheney,
Pennsylvania

Duke University, Durham, North Carolina

Wellesley College, Wellesley,
Massachusetts

Twelve hundred people were regularly enrolled for the courses which usually lasted from ten to twelve days. In addition, about 250 people attended sessions for less than five days and many thousands attended the public evening lectures held at each Institute. Since the first Institute was held at Haverford in 1930, approximately six thousand people have been enrolled.

A typical Institute program provides lectures and discussions on the political trends in Europe and Asia; basic issues in American foreign policy; economic questions such as foreign trade, tariffs, stabilization of currencies; the problems of colonies; and the ethical and spiritual issues involved in the relation of the individual to the state, and to religion and war.

Faculty

In 1937 the faculty was comprised of 81 men and women drawn from Switzerland, France, England, China, Japan, and many of the leading universities and colleges in the United States. They included Bertram Pickard, for ten years Director of the Friends Center in Geneva; Pitman B. Potter, Professor at the Institut Universitaire des Hautes Etudes Internationales at Geneva, Switzerland; Charles G. Fenwick, one of the United States delegation at the Inter-America Conference in Buenos Aires; Samuel Guy Inman, authority on South American affairs; Hugo Simon and Otto Nathan, government officers under former regimes in Germany; Pierre de Lanux, former Director of the League of Nations Office in Paris. The Oriental crisis was presented by T. Z. Koo, Chen Shou-Yi, Y. T. Wu, and Kenneth Latourette. The spiritual aspects of world peace were discussed by Henry J. Cadbury, Elbert Russell, Hornell Hart, Kirby Page, Henry M. Edmonds and Leyton Richards, of Birmingham, England.

Attendance

Of the 1,196 people enrolled in the Institutes 434 were men and 762 were women. These included 369 school and college teachers; 329 college and seminary students; 155 ministers and religious educators. Thirty other occupations were represented and many of the women were officers in women's organizations.

While complete statistics were not compiled, there were listed 158 Methodist Episcopalians, 172 Congregational-Christians, 97 Friends, 75 Presbyterians, 22 Jewish, 22 Unitarians, 20 Church of the Brethren, 16 Evangelical, 13 Reformed Church, representatives of at least twelve other denominations and 339 for whom no affiliation was indicated.

Future of the Institutes

The Peace Section is eager to extend Institute promotion and follow-up from a six months' to a year-round basis, as fast as finances can be assured. If ten additional Institutes could be organized in new areas, the great majority of the population would be within one day's travel of an Institute.

Personnel

The secretaries of the Institutes this year have been: George Selleck, New England, at Wellesley, Mass.; Helen T. Binford, at Duke University, N. C.; Alfred H. Cope, Midwest, at Naperville, Ill.; Guy W. Solt, at Grinnell, Iowa; Willis Rich, at Kansas Institute at Bethel College, Kansas; with E. L. Harshbarger as dean; Alva W. Taylor, Nashville, Tenn.; Paul Elliott, at Reed College, Ore.; Roy L. Van Deman and Lydia Michener, at Whittier, Calif., with J. Herschel Coffin as dean; Joseph Conard, at Mills College, Calif.

E. Raymond Wilson has served as dean of faculties and associate secretary of the Peace Section with active charge of the Peace Section office. Guy W. Solt was released from Grinnell September 1st to assist in the financial and organizational problems of the Peace Section. Ray and Babette Newton, who were loaned by the Peace Section to direct the Emergency Peace Campaign for 1936 and 1937, return full time to the Section on January 1, 1938.

A typical Institute group. Roy Burt speaking at the Grinnell Institute of International Relations

Midwest Friends Center

The Midwest Friends Center in Chicago not only administered the twelve-day Midwest Institute of International Relations at Naperville, but carried on varied activities in promoting Spanish relief, intervisitation, week-end institutes, distribution of literature and other Service Committee projects. Brief Institutes were held at Fairmount, Amboy, and Indianapolis, Indiana, and at Peoria and Springfield, Illinois.

Conferences or meetings were arranged on various concerns for Marie Luise Moll, Douglas Steere, Patrick Murphy Malin, J. Cuthbert Wigham, Paul Sturge, Alphons Paquet, Percy Bartlett, Shoran S. Singha, Bertram Pickard. Cash and pledges for Spanish relief were raised to the sum of $1,053.49.

Alfred H. and Ruth Balderston Cope are the secretaries and W. Clyde Allee and Homer Coppock are co-chairmen of the Chicago Friends Service Committee.

Literature

During the first ten months of 1937 mail requests for literature on peace and international relations came in from forty states, the District of Columbia, Australia, Canada, Chile and England. During this period $1,271.50 was received from literature sales which, added to the $1,300.58 sold in the Institutes, makes a total of $2,572.08 of peace literature sold in addition to what was given away. 20,000 copies of a revised edition of "The Position of the Society of Friends in Regard to War" were printed.

NoFrontier News Service

During 1937 the Peace Section continued its support of the No-Frontier News Service, conducted by Devere Allen and H. C. Engelbrecht. Reader-coverage of the material provided by this news bureau is estimated in excess of 18,000,000. About 10,000,000 magazine and newspaper readers regularly see items promoting peace provided by NoFrontier News Service. Among the publications using N. N. S. news and articles are 9 in Canada, 12 in England, 7 in India, 4 in New Zealand, 3 each in Sweden, Holland, France and Bulgaria, 2 each in China, Australia, South Africa, Switzerland, Ireland, Korea and Czechoslovakia, 1 in Roumania, Spain, Chile, Bolivia, Yugoslavia, Egypt, Norway, Denmark and Finland. Radio stations also make considerable use of N. N. S. information.

"World Events," published by N. N. S., attained a circulation of 32,000 during the Emergency Peace Campaign. While the coming year will see a substantial reduction from this peak, due to the doubling of the price to fifty cents per year, and the cessation of the Emergency Peace Campaign activities, it is apparent that the periodical is an effective medium for peace education.

EMERGENCY PEACE CAMPAIGN

The two-year Emergency Peace Campaign, initiated by the Peace Section and carried on under an autonomous Council in 1936, came to a successful conclusion on December 31, 1937. The momentum created by the Campaign during its first year made possible during 1937 results which far exceeded original expectations.

Personnel

Many prominent men and women were associated with the Campaign as speakers, sponsors and contributors. Harry Emerson Fosdick served as permanent chairman, while Charles P. Taft, II, acted as honorary chairman for the Neutrality Drive in January, and Admiral Richard E. Byrd, as honorary chairman during the No-Foreign-War Crusade in April and May. Among the prominent people from abroad who toured this country for the Campaign were Dr. Maude A. Royden, lecturer and author of England, and George L. Lansbury, a member of British Parliament. Partly as a result of his work in this country, the latter visited Hitler and Mussolini during the summer on a good-will and anti-war mission. Thousands of people throughout the country worked with the Campaign through its local committees and as office and field staff.

Finances

Contributions to the Campaign totaled approximately $550,000 in addition to the money raised and expended through local committees for community projects. More than 30,000 individuals contributed in amounts ranging from 25 cents to $55,000.00. The total received in gifts of over $1,000.00 practically equaled the total received in gifts of under $1,000.00.

Local Committees

20 regional offices were set up with 71 staff members from January until June. Through these offices active committees or good working contacts were organized in almost 2,000 towns and cities throughout the country. Meetings were held among all types of groups. During a nation-wide broadcast in April from New York and the White House, more than 7,000 listening-in meetings were held among the farm groups alone.

Enrollment

A poll of attitudes was taken among those attending the mass meetings during the first cycle of the Campaign. This was followed by a National Enrollment through all sections of the Campaign work. Nearly 25,000 pacifists and near-pacifists have returned their cards, of whom only a small percentage had previously enrolled with a peace organization.

Outreach

In addition to meetings and the distribution of literature and posters, educational work of the Campaign has been carried on by newsreels, the radio and newspapers and periodicals. The Campaign broadcast programs on nation-wide networks fourteen times, and for one program was given an international hook-up. The number of local broadcasts arranged by committees and youth groups is impossible to estimate.

College Work

One of the most significant phases of the Emergency Peace Campaign activities was the work among college men and women. About 10,000 students actively participated in the Campaign. Of these, 413 gave their entire summer to peace education in rural areas. They worked in units of from 3 to 5 students in politically strategic districts, and not only volunteered their time, but raised $28,000.00 in order to bear a share of their maintenance, before taking to the field. During the two college winters 30 recent graduates served as full-time field secretaries, working among more than 500 colleges organizing Peace Patrols which in turn carried on peace projects in nearby communities.

Conservation of Values

At the close of the Campaign the work among college students was taken over by the A. F. S. C. Peace Section, to be continued as the Student Peace Service. The work among local committees in the 2,000 towns and cities is being followed through by various national peace organizations, including the Peace Section, which is using the contacts and committees in promoting the work of the ten Institutes of International Relations. The fall cycle of meetings planned around the economic changes essential to world peace has been enlarged by the 39 member organizations of the National Peace Conference and will be extended for another year as the Campaign for World Economic Cooperation. In these ways the Emergency Peace Campaign has been able to fulfill in part one of its chief objectives—that of stimulating, uniting and strengthening the existing peace organizations.

FELLOWSHIP COUNCIL

Great rivers nourish fertile valleys when many small tributaries unite to form a powerful water course. The Fellowship Council seeks to be such a common channel in which the tributaries of many Quaker organizations combine to form a great causeway for Quaker life, thought and action.

THE Fellowship Council of the Religious Society of Friends in America represents as far as possible all branches and types of present-day Quakerism in this country. It has a membership of eighty-five persons chosen at large by the American Friends Service Committee. The Fellowship Council serves as a Central Meeting and seeks to stimulate in various ways the spiritual life and quality of our Society in America.

The work of the Council is carried on by four main committees. They are concerned with the care of New and United Meetings, the stimulation of Intervisitation of Friends, the Wider Quaker Fellowship, and the effectiveness of Friends' publications. The Council promotes a variety of minor activities also.

Intervisitation

"Off the Beaten Track"

The Committee on Intervisitation assisted with the travel arrangements for Greta Sumpf, a member of the German Yearly Meeting, when in 1937 she visited Friends in Pennsylvania, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, and California. In a letter describing her trip she wrote: "My first concern was to visit lonely meetings and Friends. Nearly all of them were open and hungry for the message I had to bring from the other groups along my road, from the East and from Germany. They allowed me to look into their thoughts and hopes and their unbroken faith, which made me humble. I learned why so many workers of the A. F. S. C. come from the rural Mid-Western meetings. These country people are near to life, less blinded by modern civilization. They dare to think their own thoughts and have their own revelations."

This is a sample of the effect that intervisitation has both on the visitor and on the visited.

Both before and after the Friends World Conference plans were made for most of the 250 Friends from Africa, Austria, Australia, Canada, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Holland, India, Ireland, Jamaica, England, France, Germany, Japan, Madagascar, Mexico, New Zealand, Norway, Palestine, Sweden and Switzerland to visit in the northern, southern, eastern and western parts of the United States. Regional conferences stimulated this visitation.

New and United Meetings "New Meetings Are Born"

Six Friends met in a doctor's office for worship every Sunday. They had no meeting house. Other interested persons joined them. Their numbers grew; a gift of money came. A meeting house was envisioned. Contributions were solicited and more interested persons joined. A lovely meeting house was built and a united meeting established. Today membership is near the 200 mark.

Usually one, two or a dozen concerned Friends living in a community meet for Christian fellowship in a private home. In university centers the local nucleus may draw into it students who have come from various Friends communities to study at the university. As the meetings continue other persons from the community and the university are attracted to the Friends Meeting and often join as convinced Friends. The groups of six, twelve, or fifteen grow to be regular meetings with a permanent membership of thirty or forty. While these groups are in the embryonic stage the Fellowship Council gives such care and guidance as seems advisable. When a meeting is of sufficient stability it is established as a regular monthly meeting affiliated with the Central Meeting of the Fellowship Council. Meetings already affiliated are:

- The Eldred Hall Meeting of Cleveland, Ohio
- The State College Meeting, State College, Pa.
- The Friends Meeting, Madison, Wisconsin
- The Friends Meeting, Honolulu, Hawaii
- Religious Society of Friends, Detroit, Michigan

Wider Quaker Fellowship "Our Outreach Extended"

"I have long felt that the Society of Friends has something to offer the world today which no other group supplies exactly, in that it presents not a creed nor a static statement, but a 'Way of Life,' perhaps our greatest need in the unstable world today."

From a Wider Quaker Fellowship Member.

The Wider Quaker Fellowship is rapidly becoming a Beloved Community in many lands and of many languages and peoples. We are now in correspondence with more than 250 members of this Fellowship. They are to be found in thirty-one states and in the following countries: Bulgaria, China, Egypt, England, Italy, Mexico, Nova Scotia, and Switzerland.

The Secretary of the Council corresponds with these members at least twice a year and some Quaker literature is sent quarterly. This fall the various Friends periodicals with the special reports of the Friends World Conference were sent to members. They also received the pamphlet "A Quaker Meeting for Worship", by Douglas V. Steere.

Publication Committee

"And so, if any Friends have Friends, beyond Sea, send them Books or Papers, and be diligent to spread the Truth; and send Latin Books, or French Books, or other Books to Leghorn, France, Poland, Italy, Norway, Low Countries, etc."

George Fox—Epistle of 1659.

The Publication Committee is conscious of the need for greater interchange of Quaker literature both at home and abroad. The Committee has sponsored three meetings of representatives from the various publication boards of the General Conference, Five Years Meeting, the Independent Yearly Meetings and the Boards of the various Friends periodicals. We are beginning to see opportunities for greater cooperation and occasions for combined efforts.

The Fellowship Council is striving to become familiar with literature available from all Quaker centers so that it may be of greater assistance in distributing such literature to groups where it would be most advantageous.

Other Council Activities

The Handbook of the Religious Society of Friends is still available. It contains information about Friends Meetings, schools, periodicals, and other activities all over the world.

The Quaker Bibliography of over six hundred books lists them under the following classifications: historical, biographical, Quaker principles, devotional and inspirational, Bible study courses, Stories, Incidents, Anecdotes, Poetry, Fiction. Copies are available at Whittier College, Friends University, Earlham College, Russell Sage Foundation Library, New York, Friends House, London, Friends Historical Library of Swarthmore College, Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society, Columbus, Ohio.

The Quaker Letter—Six times a year a letter, prepared by B. Willis Beebe, is sent to more than 200 Friends who are more or less isolated from Friends Meetings.

Traveling Libraries—Benjamin F. Whitson supervises the circulation of the Traveling Libraries.

The Fellowship Council is in its cradle stage. It is still in its swaddling clothes. But it is well-born and it is full of hope and promise. It expects a great future of life and service, for it believes that it has come into being "for a time like this."

INFORMATION AND LITERATURE

THE American Friends Service Committee is an incorporated body under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania. It represents most of the twenty-nine American Yearly Meetings of Friends. The organization consists of the Social-Industrial Section, Foreign Service Section, Peace Section, Fellowship Council, Committee on Spain, and Finance Committee. Each of these is under the supervision of an advisory committee, and functions through the Service Committee's Board of Directors and Executive Staff.

Information and literature concerning the work of the American Friends Service Committee may be secured through the following:

New England Branch Office

GEORGE SELLECK, Secretary, 5 Longfellow Park, Cambridge, Mass.

Chicago Branch Office

ALFRED H. COPE, Secretary, Suite 1103, 53 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Friends Central Office

WALTER C. WOODWARD, 101 South 8th St., Richmond, Ind.

Field Secretary of Peace Section

JOSEPH W. CONARD, Mills College, Cal.

The Friends Service Council, Friends House, Euston Road, London, N. W. 1, is appointed by London and Dublin Yearly Meetings. In the European fields, the work has been carried on by the Friends Service Council (London) and the American Friends Service Committee.
